About the Conference

The International Conference on Law and Political Science (ICLPS-2026) is organised by the International Institute of Engineers and Researchers (IIER) with IRAJ as academic partner. Over two days in Kuala Lumpur, scholars and practitioners will present research, debate policy and build lasting professional networks.

Who should attend

- Law faculty, legal scholars and advocates
- Political scientists and IR researchers
- Policymakers and public administrators
- PhD, postgraduate and undergraduate students
- NGO, think-tank and industry professionals

Why attend

- Present your research to an international audience
- Publish in indexed proceedings and journals
- Network with peers across disciplines and regions
- Gain exposure to new ideas, methods and policy debates

AIMS & OBJECTIVES

- Provide a global platform for legal professionals, political scientists, academics, researchers, practitioners and policymakers.
- Promote interdisciplinary collaboration across Law, Political Science, Public Policy, International Relations, Governance and Human Rights.
- Discuss contemporary legal and political issues in national and international contexts.
- Present innovative research, theories and methodologies in law and political science.
- Explore emerging trends in legal systems, governance, public administration and international law.
- Foster academic and professional networking among participants from around the world.
- Examine the impact of technological and social change on law, governance and justice systems.
